Baby Bunny's Train

By Eileen Spinelli • Art by Rose Mary Berlin

Three big boxes in a row.
Where will Baby Bunny go?

Baby Bunny made a train for herself. How might your child use a box? Make a pretend house? A car? A plane? Help your little one's imagination soar as you play together.

Clickety-clack to the park.
Home again before it's dark.

Let's go again. The ride is free.

Granny calls out: “Wait for me!”

My Toothbrush

First, talk about what's happening in this photo and how the child is feeling. After reading the poem, talk about your child's toothbrushing routine.

I see my face
In the mirror.
Mom tells me to Open wide.
Then we put my Toothbrush in
And clean the Teeth inside.

Find It

Teddy Bear

Car

After finding the red car on the floor, talk about the vehicles on the mobile. Then talk about what books you and your little one like to read at bedtime.

Pickups

By Pamela Love • Art by Anna Jones

This little pickup is empty.

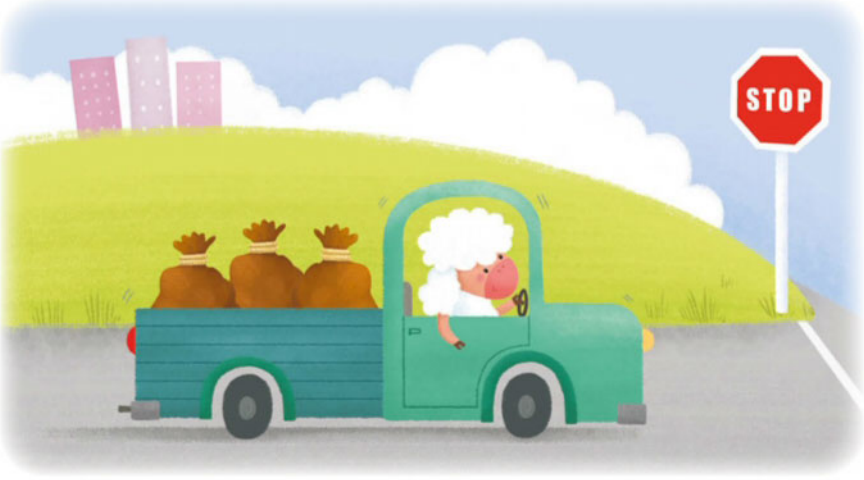

This little pickup is full.

Have fun talking about these colorful trucks and what their sweet animal drivers are doing. You could also count the stores, trees, and trucks on the next page.

This little pickup is moving.

This little pickup is still.

LAUNDRY STORE

And these little pickups go beep, beep, beep
all the way up the hill.

One Star, One Moon

By Sharon Coker • Art by Ailie Busby

As you read this poem, be sure to act out the hug and kiss! Then talk about what else you see—only one toy, but lots of stripes, trees, mushrooms, and leaves.

One hug.
Squeeze tight.

One kiss.
Good night!
