A joey becomes a kangaroo.

As you read this story, point to the animal or object as you name it. Then find a picture of you and your baby. Talk about what you see in that photo, too.

Find Me!

(To the tune of "Where Is Thumbkin?")

Where is Mommy? Where is Mommy?
There she is! There she is!

To extend the fun, sing this again but substitute kitty for Mommy and Daddy, and sing Where's the kitty? Help your child point to the kitty as you sing, "There she is!" For another variation, hide your face with a small towel as you sing. As you move the towel away, sing, "Here I am!"

Help your child find the objects in the picture. Talk about how the moon, bright lampposts, and dark sky show us it's night. Then ask your child to look out the window. What does he see? Is it daytime or nighttime? How does he know?

Leaves are falling from the tree.
How many can you catch?

When you talk about the pictures, name the colors you see and point to and count the pumpkins. Then talk about what the little bear is doing and what your child likes to do outside.

Let's play a game of hide-and-seek down in the pumpkin patch.

Then take a ride with Daddy
on a wagon heaped with hay.

Baby's Lullaby

By Rebecca Kai Dotlich • Art by Laura Zarrin

Lullaby and kisses sweet,
Kisses for two tiny feet.

Make up a little tune and sing this poem. Then give your baby kisses on her hands, her feet, her ears, and her two little cheeks. Count the kisses—one, two—as you give them.

And don't forget two tiny thumbs
To kiss before the Sandman comes.
