Bath Time!

By Heidi Bee Roemer

I splash in a muddy river.

This story provides a wonderful opportunity to talk with your child about bath time. What does he like to do in the tub? If you have pets, talk about how the animals in your home take “baths.”

Let's Pretend

By Rikki B. Romerez • Art by Angela Muss

I am Jack inside my box.
I am quiet as a fox.

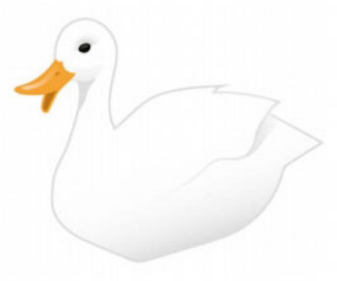

Before you read this poem, talk about what happens when you turn the handle on a jack-in-the-box. After sharing this poem, give your child a big box and encourage her to act it out!

Crank my handle. Hear me shout,
"I AM JACK!" as I pop out.

Talk about the animals in this park. Then, when you go to a park, look for and name animals you see there.

Nana and Me

By Deborah Holt Williams • Art by Kasia Dudziuk

Huggity, snuggity, buggity bee,
we sit on the sofa, just Nana and me.

Snuggle together as you read this story. Then talk about what happens when your child's grandparents come to visit. You could also talk about the toys in this story. Does your child have any toys like these?

I have my sippy cup, she has her tea.

We read a book or two, or three.

Huggity, snuggity, buggity bee,
I love it when Nana cuddles with me!

Move to the Beat

(To the tune of "Row, Row, Row Your Boat")

By Stacy Hart • Art by Melissa Iwai

Clap, clap, clap my hands,
I can clap my hands.
Clappity, clappity, clappity, clappity,
I can clap my hands.

Have fun making up more verses: wave my arms; tap my head; swing my arms; nod my head; touch my nose; sing a song. What else can your little one do?

Kick, kick, kick my feet,
I can kick my feet.
Kickity, kickity, kickity, kickity,
I can kick my feet.
