Baby in a sling.

Talk about the babies in these photos—how they are feeling and what they are doing. Then talk about all the places your child likes to be.

What Is It?

By Laura Purdie Salas • Art by Hiroe Nakata

The trees are covered in frosty white.
But something's moving—red and bright.

Snow transforms a backyard or park into a white backdrop, making colors stand out. Have fun talking about all the colors you see.

Is that my mitten? I lost it today.
No! It's a redbird, flying away.

Squirrel

Cloud

Hat

Have fun talking about everything you see in this snowy scene. And then talk about what you'd do together if you were in this park.

First Steps

By Heidi Bee Roemer • Art by Deborah Melmon

Here, little baby, take my hand.
Ready, steady, up you stand!

It's such a joy to watch resilient little ones get up and try again as they learn something new. Enjoy sharing this sweet story with your toddler.

One step, two steps . . .
oops, don't stop.

Wibble, wobble—

down you plop!

Where's My Baby?

(To the tune of "Are You Sleeping?")

By Stacy Hart • Art by Melissa Iwai

Where's my baby, where's my baby?
Do you know? Do you know?

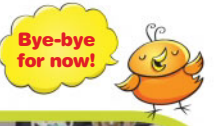

Don't worry about your singing voice. Your child will love it! Pull out a blanket and sing this song, substituting your child's name for baby as you play peekaboo.

Did I hear a giggle? Did that blankie wiggle?
Peekaboo! Peekaboo!
