Bunny Hop

By Ann Dorer • Art by Eva Maria Gey Trenado

See the little bunny go hop, hop hop.

After you've read this story several times, turn it into a fingerplay. Help your child hold up two fingers to make "bunny ears." Have fun acting it out together.

Please, little bunny,
won't you stop, stop, stop?

I will pat your furry back. Won't you stay?

But up jumped the bunny
and he hopped away.

Papa's Little Patty-Cakes

By Heidi Bee Roemer • Art by Claire Keay

Patty-cakes, patty-cakes.
Papa picks her up and holds her.

Read the poem and talk about how the girl looks when Papa picks her up and swings her. Does she look happy? Then ask your child if he would like you to flip him on your shoulder. If he says yes, enjoy acting this out with your little one.

Papa swings her high and low
And flips her on his shoulder!

My Best Day

Story and Art by Maggie Smith

Saturday's my favorite day.
'Cause that's when Nana comes.

After reading the story, help your child look on each page for the puppet Nana brought. Turn to the cover to find the puppet again. Then pull out a sock and make and play with your own puppet.

She tickles me. She hugs me tight.
She calls me Honey Bun.

We laugh and play.

We eat.

We read. It's fun when Nana comes!

Look What Mommy Found!

By Rikki B. Romerez

Jilly-jelly belly button,
Hiding in your middle.

When you read, point to your baby's belly button. Then read the poem again and say a different body part, such as knee or nose. Don't worry about making the poem rhyme. Your child will enjoy the sound of your voice and the tickles.

Tickle, tickle, tickle!
